Welcome

20 YEARS OF
FILM LONDON

On behalf of Film London, I am thrilled to welcome you all to Distributor Slate Days, from the wonderful Picturehouse Central Cinema.

I passionately believe movies are made for the big screen, so I am delighted to provide this opportunity for distributors and exhibitors to forge stronger ties and explore new collaborative partnerships. Now celebrating its 10th year, Distributor Slate Days has a track record of presenting some incredible content and getting audiences back into cinemas to enjoy a diverse range of stories.

Whilst many challenges remain for cinemas, now more than ever it's so important that we support and celebrate the UK's incredible cinema network. With new independent distributors set to attend Distributor Slate Days, alongside returning majors, we look forward to what promises to be an exciting programme.

Not only are we proud to celebrate a decade of Distributor Slate Days, this also falls within Film London's 20th anniversary year. London is renowned as a global hub for film, television, VFX, animation and video games. Our talent, in front and behind the camera, consistently wins awards. Alongside the other regional clusters, our skills and training work is helping address crucial skills gaps and diversify our workforce. We are supporting London's cinemas to reach audiences in a changing market through Film Hub London. And constant innovation, from archive film to animation and video games, is merging worlds, forging exciting new directions for London and the UK's screen culture, industries and audiences.

A critical element of the film industry's ecosystem, cinemas contribute significantly to the UK's culture and economy. Showcasing incredible talent, engaging local communities, sustaining loyal audiences and encouraging new ones. I would like to thank our event partners the Film Distributors Association, our media partners Screen International, and our generous sponsors Filmbankmedia, Comscore and Usheru for their commitment and enthusiasm toward this event. Finally, I would like to thank you for your unrivalled commitment to cinema. I hope you enjoy this year's event!

Adrian Wootton OBE
Chief Executive
Film London and the British Film Commission

Welcome

The Film Distributors' Association (FDA) is delighted to support Distributor Slate Days in it's 10th year, returning once again to the glorious Picturehouse Central.

Over the last decade Film London has built Slate Days into an established landmark in the annual film industry calendar, a must-attend event where distributors and exhibitors can interact with great common purpose to ensure that cinemas are able to deliver the most exciting and diverse selection of upcoming films to their loyal audiences. Each year the number of attendees and films presented reaches new heights, and 2024 looks set to be the biggest and best event to date.

Over the coming packed two days, distributors from all corners of the sector will present the pick of their future slates to exhibition partners, and the panoply of films on offer should cater for every possible cinemagoer. Cinemas have faced some tough times recently and no doubt many challenges remain, yet we know that audiences love to watch films of all shapes and sizes and they will continue to choose the theatrical experience as the blue riband viewing environment.

With networking opportunities available on day one and a second day devoted purely to one-on-one meetings, this enterprise creates a great space for everyone to build together for a brighter cinematic future. Long-standing industry friendships and trading partnerships will no doubt be further cemented alongside the forging of new and lasting alliances.

We look forward to a fruitful couple of days ahead and catching up with everyone.

Key to abbreviations used

DS: Descriptive Subtitles are available

For the D/deaf and hard of hearing, Descriptive Subtitles are sometimes referred to as HOH (hard of hearing) or SDH (subtitles for Deaf and hard of hearing). They are a transcription rather than a translation, so as well as reproducing dialogue, they aim to describe additional non-dialogue sounds available to a hearing audience watching a film, e.g. "[sighs]" or "[door creaks]", musical cues, and song lyrics, in order that all audiences may have an equal viewing experience.

AD: Audio description is available

Audio description is commentary that aims to describe body language, expressions and movements to blind or partially sighted audience members, thereby offering additional information about the film through sound. Audio description runs each time the film is shown and is undetectable to anyone not wearing a headset.
